POLITICAL NEWS.

Democrats Name Their Candidates and Adopt a Remarkable Platform—Other Matters of Interest.

The Democratic Convention at Dover on Tuesday nominated Ebe Walter Tunnel, of Lewes, for Governor of Delaware, and Samuel Bancroft, Jr., of Wilmington, for Representative in Congress.

There was little opposition to Mr. Tunnel, but the fight for Bancroft was pretty warm. It required five ballots in the New Castle County Caucus to give him the nomination, but the bosses finally ruled. The Convention has been well called Willard Saulsbury's Convention, for as he cracked the whip Neary, Dickey, Callahan, etc., struggled with the opposing forces and finally won for Bancroft.

The ballots resulted as follows:

Bancroft—First, 19; second, 26; third, 27; fourth, 29; fifth, 34.

Handy—First, 11; second, 12; third 14; fourth, 17; fifth, 21.

Cooch—First, 13; second, 11; third, 11; fourth, 7; fifth, 5.

Whiteman—First, 7; second, 5; third, 5. fourth, 1; fifth, none.

Cochran—First, 9; second, 7; third, 5; fourth, 7, fifth, 2.

Kent and Sussex counties agreed to stand by the New Castle county caucus for Congressman, and in convention the names of Tunnel for Governor and Bancroft for Congress were ratified.

The leaders are well satisfied with the ticket, and though the Evening Journal continues to sputter for the present, it will soon fall into line, take back all it has said and work for Bancroft. That is the style of the Cleveland Democracy.

Mr. Tunnell is a native Delawarean, of Sussex County, for the past 10 years a resident of Lewes. He is spoken of as a man of unimpeachable character, and is a strong candidate.

Mr. Bancroft is a native of New Castle County, is a wealthy manufacturer, and formerly a Republican, but has been sailing under Democratic colors since 1868.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE.

Executive Officers Elected and Headquarters Established.

The New Castle County Executive Committee met in the rooms of the Young Men's Republican Club in Wilmington on last Saturday.

F. E. Bach was made temporary chairman, and the following officers were then elected: Chairman, Martin B. Burris of Middletown; vice-chairman for the Second district, Richard E. Buckingham, of Mill Creek hundred; secretary, Edmund Mitchell, Jr., of Wilmington; treasurer, Seth H. Feaster, of Wilmington. The officers received the unanimous vote of the committee.

It was decided to hold the primary election for members of the General Assembly, road commissioners and assessors on September 8th. The polling places will be open from 3 to 7 p. m.

MALLALIEU NOMINATED.

Republicans of Queen Anne's Name Their Man.

Joseph Mallalieu, of Millington, was nominated at the Republican Convention of the First District at Ocean City, Md., on Tuesday to fill out the unexpired term of Robert F. Bratten, deceased.

Mr. Mallalieu was born in Queen Anne's county, near Millington, about fifty-two years ago. He is the son of Thoma Mallalieu, proprietor of the Unicorn Cloth Mills. He was educated at Dickinson College. For years he conducted the mills, which closed about ten years ago. Since then he has been a farmer. He was elected in 1881 to the State Legislature.

There is every reason to believe that he will be elected.

A Voice From Bourbon.

To the Editor of the World.

I do not know what you think about it, but I have never had any confidence in Mr. John G. Carlisle as a stateman since I I heard of his accepting a house and lot as a "ee" from the Louisville Lottery Company. After that it does not surprise me to find him on the side of the sugar trust. As far as the Democratic party is concerned, he is a mournful failure, and no one is more painfully aware of it than are those in Kentucky and other Valley States who were once his warmest partisans.

BOURBON COUNTY.

New York, Aug., 27th.

These Democratic Times.

Kansas City Journal, (Rep.).

In these good Democratic times the farmer taks a dollar's worth of wheat and sell it for 50 cents, and then he can take the 50 cents and buy 40 cents worth of sugar.

Unrivaled in Its Infamy.

For shallow shiftiness, dense ignorance and downright incapacity the first session of the Fifty-third Congress stands unrivaled in the annals of legislation in America.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

'Squire Ferguson Holds Court in "Whoppum."

'Squire Ferguson moved his Magistrate's Office from his old quarters with M. B. Burris, to his residence in the East End, where he is prepared to issue warrants, marriage licenses, etc., as heretofore For nearly five years he has occupied offices wiih Mr. Burris, but the increase in both the law and magistrate's business, causes him to seek new quarters.

Holding Court in "Whoppum" will doubtless give it a boom, and history will again repeat itself, for, many years ago the business part of the town was down by the sycamore tree, where the blacksmith shop, the town pump and the school house were the chief industries. What a change the years have wrought.

MISS AGNES MERRITT.

Her Early Death From Typhoid Fever.

Miss Agnes Merritt the daughter of Richard Merritt of Warwick died early Saturday morning, after a brief illness of typhoid pneumonia. She was only 21 years old, was loved by all who knew her for her beautiful character, her gentle spirit and amiable disposition. She was the organist of the M. P. Church at Warwick and an active worker in church and Sunday School.

Her funeral on Monday was conducted by her pastor Rev. B. P. Truitt, assisted by Rev. Mr. Kane. Interment in Warwick Cemetery.

Pennsylvania Tours to the South.

For several seasons past the announcement of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's Tours to the South has been looked for with interest, and the pleasant anticipations of those who participated in them have been more than realized. For the present early autumn, announcement is made of two personally-conducted tours from New York to the mountains of Maryland and Virginia and the two most prominent cities of the upper South. The specific points covered by these tours are Gettysburg, Blue Mountain, Luray Caverns, Natural Bridge, the Grottoes of the Shenandoah, and the cities of Richmond and Washington. It would be difficult to plan a tour of ten days which would embrace a more interesting group of places, as every one of them has an individual interest that cannot fail to enlist wide and favorable attention. The scenery of the entire route is picturesque and attractive, and the season is timed so as to present the scenic beauties in their best form. These tours will leave New York and Philadelphia on September 15th and 29th, and the members of the party will travel in special trains of parlor cars provided exclusively for their use. The entire round trip covers a period of ten days, and excursion tickets, including all traveling expenses, will be sold from New York at $55 and Philadelphia $53. For itineraries containing complete information as to routes, special train service, descriptive notes, &c., apply to or address Tourist Agent, 1196 Broadway, N. Y., or Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

And Now the Oyster.

The oyster season opens to-day. That is welcome news to almost everyone, for the bivalve is a general favorite. It is said that the oysters this year will be very fine. The oyster industry in the Delaware bay is a species of farming just as much so as raising corn. The dredger plants and then he reaps. The Chesapeake oysters also promise well. The quality of the oysters now being sent to market is superior to those which were coming this time last year. Then the quality was poor and the oysters all the season were below the usual standard. Old dealers and those who know, say that the oysters that are now coming indicate that the quality this year will be superior to that of last year.

MARRIED.

Reed—Clayton.

On July 18th, 1893, in Mt. Holly, N. J. by Rev. Joseph G. Reed, Thomas S. Reed of Philadelphia to Miss Myra C. Clayton, daughter of Charles Clayton, formerly of Middletown. They will reside in Philadelphia.

LITTLE LOCALS.

—"Let others choose their love, September pleases me."

—Sweet potatoes are quite plentiful in the local market. They are of good size and fair price—50 cents per basket.

—It is time the hops were pulled, in accordance with the old rule that September wind must never blow on good hops.

—The tomato cannery has not been running on full time more than one day this week, but a full run is expected for next week.

—The Middletown schools will open on Monday, September 10th, with the same cords of teachers that did such good work last year.

—Mr. John Hayes, of Red Lion, shipped 17000 quarts of Strawberries this year from one acre of ground and cleared $500. But that should not lead one to plant their whole farm in berries.

—Visible signs of life at the Presbyterian Manse yesterday gave the welcome evidence that its occupants have returned after an absence of a month. Rev. F. H. Moore will occupy his pulpit to-morrow.

—The party at Turkey Point Beach have returned home after a two week's enjoyment of camp life. Misses Lynch, Miss McWhorter. Misses Lofland, Miss Mattie Davis, John Davis and several other made the party.

—With the return of September days the preachers and teachers are returning to their various places. We welcome them home again, and hope they come back to us with increased mental and physical vigor from their summer's outing.

—George Goldsborough, the boy who was arrested for threatenings against Mr. Benjaman Armstrong, was finally lodged in jail yesterday. Constable Reed being sick, A. E. Holten was deputized to land the culprit in jail and he did it.

"What do you do with your corn?" he said
To the hard-worked farmer man.
"We eat what we can," the toiler replied,
"And what we can't eat we can."

—The sounding of the fire alarm at about 6 o'clock p. m., is a signal for the electric lights to come on. So when you hear it just touch your button and 'tis done.

—Forest Presbyterian Sunday School picnicked at Augustine Park on Thursday. There were several large wagon loads of happy looking children and young folks, besides a large number who went in private teams and all had a good time. There were several thousand visitors at the Park that day.

—Our friend who borrowed our Century Magazine for the month of August, will oblige us greatly by returning it to this office. We are always glad to have our friends read our many exchanges, magazines, periodicals etc., but please dont carry them away, especially before we have a chance to read them ourselves.

—Our Town Fathers are making a good record for street improvements. Besides filling in the streets with gravel and raising the road-bed, they are widening and deepening the drainage tunnels, and improving the crossing very materially. The narrow diagonal crossing that leads to the TRANSCRIPT is now wide enough for two, so we no longer have to cross single file.

—Little Housten Naudain of Baltimore is quite a horseman and during his recent visit with his mother at her father's William Housten's it was a daily occurance to see the little fellow drawing the rein on "Modock" to the delight and amusement of the other occupants of the well filled coach. And when his grandma and great grandmother were of the number he took special pride in showing how well he could drive. We shall miss the bright little fellow with happy face and flowing curls, for he has gone back home again.

FOR THE FARMER BOY.

How to Get at the Top of the Heap.

Last year Delaware College established two new short courses in Agriculture to furnish instruction to such young men as feel that that they cannot give the time necessary for a complete college course.

These courses proved so popular with those who took them that we wish to call attention of others to them, now that the opening of the college year is at hand.

Every young man intending to be a farmer should learn what the college thus offers as a preparation for his life work. If he thinks he cannot afford the time for either of the two longer courses which begin with the opening of the college, September 5th, he should, at least make up his mind to take the short winter course beginning January 2d.

It is none too early to begin preparation for this course, now. This Winter Course includes only such studies as are of direct practical use to the farmer; and by taking it a young man is enabled to make profitable use of some of his winter leisure, by pursuing a course of studies related to his every day work. Prof. W. H. Bishop of Newark will give anyone any infomation on the subject.

AMONG THE HILLS.

Observations and Experiences of a Middletown Lady.

The following is from a very interesting letter received by a pupil of the writer, a teacher in the Middletown Schools, who is summering among historic and picturesque scenes of New England. The recipient of the letter appreciated it so highly that she desired to share it with her fellow pupils and at her request, we give a number of extracts from it.

The letter is dated August 22d, Maplewood Cottage, N. H:

The morning I left Boston, rain and mist threatened to destroy our expected view of the grand Crawford Notch; but fortune favored us, for by the time we reached the Notch the clouds lifted and that grand view of those two mountain walls was before us. The Notch is really two mountain walls enclosing a narrow valley, the train or railroad climbs half way up the left mountain wall. The discovery of this Notch happened under romantic circumstances. A hunter named Nash, was chasing a moose on Cherry Mount when he saw the Notch opening through the mountain; he entered and explored it. He thought that a road could be made through this pass connecting the upper county or country with the coast, the road then used being long and rugged. He told his discovery to Governor Wentworth (1773) who told Nash if he could get a horse through the pass he would give him a large grant of land.

Nash had another hunter to help him; a horse was gotten through but they had to lower him over cliffs and drove him through streams. Then one of the men broke a bottle of rum against the ledge and named it Sawyers rock. A road was built and the first article of county produce sent through the Notch was a barrel of tobacco, while the first merchandise sent up from the coast was a barrel of rum.

This is the story told of the first use of the Notch, but even the tobacco and rum cannot spoil the wonderful beauty. While we paused, the brakeman pointed out the Willey House and told its sad history This boarding house which was built for the traders who went down the pass in winter, was occupied in 1826 by Mr. Willey, his wife and five children, also two hired men. In August of that year, after a long, severe drought the mountains were assailed by a furious storm, which caused the river to rise rapidly and during the night an enormous mass of earth, rock and trees slid from Mt. Willey into the valley. This avalanche was split by a sharp ledge back of the house, and flowed on both sides without harming it, but the family had left the house, probably fearing the swelling torrent of the Saco, and being somewhere in the track of the slide every one was killed. The house is not open now except by paying a small fee it may be viewed by morbid tourists.

Maplewood is about a mile from Bethlehem and is mainly composed of two hotels. Every way one looks one see's nothing but these beautiful, beautiful hills.

Yesterday Mount Washington was covered with snow. It is very cold here, I am sitting by a wood fire most of the time; all the halls are heated by steam, so we are quite comfortable.

Last Thursday I went up Mount Washington. I was very nervous at the thought of going up, as so many are overcome by the altitude, but as soon as I was seated in the car drawn or rather pushed by one of those strange looking engines all my fears vanished. I enjoyed every movement; the grades in places were frightful. Just think of going up 1980 feet in one mile. The average grade is about twelve hundred fee as there are a series of natural terraces. The vegetation decreases just as you know it does when going toward the poles. At first there were beautiful birch, maple, pine and cedar trees, but they grew smaller and smaller till the stunted cedar and pine showed only a few inches above the rocky soil, finally nothing was to be seen but a vast expanse of rocks broken and seamed by the many storms that winter has sent among these hills. We reached the top at eleven; the temperature was 47°; they told us it was a very, very warm day. I was dressed as I am home in winter so was not able to judge of the weather. I felt so well going up that when I reached the summit I thought I could climb over rocks as fast as I wished, but when I started to run up the stairs of the observatory I found I had over estimated my lung power. I was just gasping for breath and when I reached the second landing I had to pause ten minutes or more for my lungs to fill. The view from the top was wonderful; below us were the cities, the lakes, the rivers and towns far away and below us in the valley rested a cloud. I was really above the clouds.

BASE BALL

Baltimore now leads.

At this writing Dover has played three games this week. The scores:

Tuesday, Dover 12; Camden 6.
Wednesday, Dover 19; Farmington 9.
Thursday, Dover 7; Hamilton A. A. 6.

MIDDLETOWN 9; ODESSA 0

was the result of the Odessa-Middletown game at Odessa, Saturday. Ginn was wild and received poor support and retired in the fifth. Osborne, of Aberdeen was then put in. but Odessa refused to play further claiming that as Osborne had refused to pitch for them, he had no right to officiate for Middletown. Umpire Holten after waiting the required two minutes gave the game to Middletown by the above score.

The Townsend Club went to Port Penn, Thursday and totally annihilated Prof. Griffin's aggregation of ball players. Stradley was in his old time form, striking out 12 of the shore men and allowing them but 3 hits. The score:

Port Penn..	0	0	1	0	1	4	1	3	10	3	12
Townsend...	9	5	1	3	10	4	1	4	37	22	3

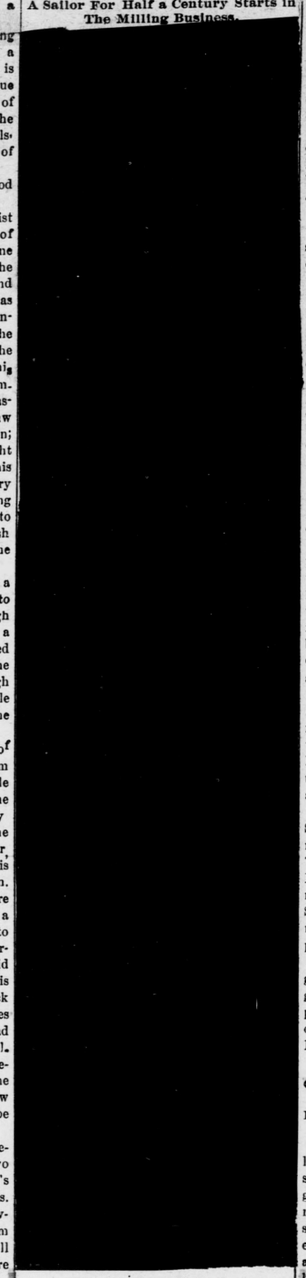
Batteries—Townsend, Stradley and Lattomus; Port Penn, Fisher, Griffin and Johnson. Struck out—Stradley, 12; Fisher, 2.

The Tax on Playing Cards.

The new tariff bill imposes a tax of two cents on every pack of playing cards in the hands of manufacturers or dealers and on every pack manufacturered after the law goes into effect. It also provides apenalty of $50 for the sale of every pack of cards after the law becomes operative without a two-cent stamp attached. Every one who has playing cards intended for sale is required to forward to the internal revenue collector of the district in which he does business a sworn statement of the number of packs of cards he has on hand the day the bill becomes a law. Importers of playing cards will also be required to every pack imported.

GEORGE WIGGIN'S MILL.

A Sailor For Half a Century Starts in The Milling Business.



PENINSULA NEWS.

Wicomico county, Md., will raise $54,000 worth of tomatoes this year.

Harry W. Burriss, of Boston, Mass., will start the horses at the Delaware State Fair.

The annual Fair of the Cecil County Agricultural Society will open at Elkton on September 4th and continue four days.

E. N. Baker, of Dover, has over a hundred hands at work in his cannery and is packing about 1,500 baskets of tomatoes a day.

County Commissioner Thomas A. Dudley, a farmer in Chapel district, near Easton, has lost nearly all his hogs, amounting to five or six hundred dollars, with cholera.

Workmen have been engaged for several days past clearing the land of Wm. M. Singerly at Frenchtown on the Elk river, two miles south of Elkton, preparatory to building a large brick-yard on the land. Mr. Singerly recently discovered a rich vein of the best quality of clay.

Mrs. Elexine Ross, one of the oldest women of Cambridge, died early Wednesday morning. She was born in Caroline county and was the widow of the late William H. Ross, who was one of the most prominent men of the county. Mrs. Ross was seventy-one years of age. She leaves six children.

A. F. Huey, Esq., the hustling agricultural implement and carriage dealer, who was recently burned out at Masseys, is in full operation again. He has secured good quarters in the lower end of the town and opened his large warerooms with a full supply of implements and carriages.

Harwood Ayers, of Delaware City, has purchased the jewelry business of A. Bernhard, in Easton, Md., and moved to Easton on Saturday. He is an experienced man in the business. His father, now dead, was a well-known minister in the Wilmington M. E. Conference and lived in Smyrna some years before joining the Conference.

James W. Greenwood, a prosperous farmer, living near Kennedyville, has dissappeared and serious apprehensions are felt for his safety. He was married several months ago to Miss Lillie M. Rutter. On August 13, he left home, stating that he was going to Wilmington on business. Since then he has not been heard from.

A large lot of valuable real estate wa offered at public sale Wednesday at Chestertown. The valuable property known as the "Rasin Farm" in Still Pond Neck was offered at mortgagee's sale, but was held up at $30. "The Old Plantation" property was purchased at mortgagee's sale by Lida Rasin for $26 per acre. A property adjoining Still Pond village was purchased by Mrs. Caroline Hynson. The McCleaver property, near Worton Station, was purchased by Franklin Smith. Personal property in the county is selling at extremely low prices and a great deal is being offered at public sale.

BOUGHT AT FORECLOSURE.

Consolidation of Baltimore & Eastern Shore and Other Comapanies To-day.

WEDNESDAY, Aug. 29th.—At noon to-day was completed the last link in the consolidation of the properties of the Baltimore & Eastern Shore Railroad Co., Maryland Steamboat Co., Choptank Steamboat Co and the Eastern Shore Steamboat Co., when Henry P. Scott of the banking firm of Elliott, Johnson & Co., Wilmington, Del., representing the purchasing syndicate bought in at foreclosure sale the Baltimore & Eastern Shore Railroad Co.

The price paid was the nominal one fixed by order of court in the decree of sale, as the syndicate owned almost the entire issue of the old outstanding bonds issued by the railroad. The new company which has been incorporated under the laws of Maryland to take over these properties is known as the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Co., with capital of $2,500,000.

The properties now owned by this company have practically controlled the traffic of the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia Peninsula along the Eastern Shore of the Chesapeake bay to and from Baltimore for many years past, and the the consolidation will permit their more economical management as well as give an improved service through the advantage of sameness in ownership.

The boat lines extend along all the important water ways of the eastern shore of the Chesapeake bay and include a fleet of 15 high class steamboats and over 112 wharf properties. The railroad extends from Claiborne, Md., on the Chesapeake bay across the fertile Peninsula to Ocean City on the Atlantic Ocean, a distance of about 90 miles.

The new company represents very powerful interests and not only keeps in the management the service of the gentlemen who made the separate lines successful, but has joined with them men well known in the business world for marked executive ability as well as great wealth.

The board of directors include John E. Searles, Brayton Ives, William F. Havemeyer, Charles C. Pomeroy, Winthrop M. Tuttle, New York City; Enoch Pratt, N. P. Bond, Esq., Hon. J. Upshur Dennis, Baltimore, Md.; Henry P. Scott, Thomas B. Smith, Captain Willard Thomson, Wilmington, Del.; Carroll S. Tyson, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. S. Ricker, Portland, Me.

This new traffic consolidation will be of great advantage to the farmers and fruit growers of our Peninsula, as with the improved facilities better opportunities are offered them to ship their products to the Baltimore market.

CECIL COUNTY FAIR AT ELKTON.

Reduced Rates via Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad.

The success which has attended this exhibition during previous years should arouse sufficient enthusiasm to draw even a larger gathering this year than ever before. The management, encouraged by the great success of last season, has again offered every inducement to both the exhibitor and visitor. Many new and live attractions have been gathered for the programme such as trick horses, balloon ascensions and parachute drops. These are in addition to the running and trotting races, which are, as usual, the chief enlivenment of the occasion.

For the accommodation of visitors to the fair the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad will sell excursion tickets from many points on its divisions and sub-divisions at greatly reduced rates, which will include admission to the grounds. Fair days include September 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, and tickets will be sold on those days, good to return until the 8th. A special train will leave Elkton for Wilmington 6.03 p. m. on September 5th, 6th and 7th.

G. A. R. ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT.

Low Rates to Pittsburg by Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Interest in the annual reunions of the Grand Army of the Republic and Naval Veterans Association grows with each succeeding year, not only among the veterans themselves, but among all patriotic citizens of the republic.

The encampment this year at Pittsburg, from present indications, promises to be as interesting and enthusiastic as any reunion since the war. Thousands of veterans from all parts of the country will be present, and Pittsburg will surpass herself in showing them her hospitality.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co will sell excursion tickets from all ticket stations on its line east of the Ohio River for all trains September 6th to 10th, valid for return passage on all trains until September 25th, inclusive, at one fare for the round trip.

For more detailed information, write to Chas. O. Scull, Gen'l Pass. Agent, B. & O. R. R., Baltimore. Md.

REDUCED RATES.

To the Delaware State Fair at Dover.

The seventeenth annual Delaware State Fair, to be held at Fairview Park, Dover, from September 10th to 15th, promises to be one of great interest.

The inducements offered this year to successful competitors will be greatly in the increase of those of previous years, and the many special premiums to be given out will act as a strong card towards securing a great number of exhibitors to the fair. The grand display of cereals and live stock will be most interesting and instructive to the visitor.

Racing, as usual, will be a striking and drawing feature of the occasion. This part of the programme has been much improved by the addition of new blood.

In all, the fair this year will be exceedingly interesting, and the attendance will undoubtedly be larger than ever before.

As a further inducement towards making the affair a grand success, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad will sell excursion tickets, including admission to the grounds, from principal stations on the Maryland Division and from all points on the Delaware Division and Branches and Queen Anne's and Kent R. R., at greatly reduced rates. Tickets will be sold from the 10th to the 15th inclusive, good to return until the 17th inclusive.

THE PRESIDENT AND HIS PARTY.

President Cleveland allowed the tariff bill to become a law without his signature or approval, and in so doing has shown himself, in the eyes of the people, to be the moral coward that he is. His recent severe denunciation and professed disapproval of the measure, go for naught, and this cowardly makeshift is the crowning act of "perfidy and dishonor," If he was honest in his opposition to the Gorman Bill why did not he have manhood enough to give it his veto? He would then, at least, have been entitled to the respect of the people; but now he and his party alike are a stench in the nostrils of the nation. His reasons for neither signing the bill or vetoing it are made public through a private letter via Mr. Catchings, and is the weakest utterance that ever came from a man who claims to be a statesman, and the most complete act of compromise and stultification on record. He cannot veto the bill because, forsooth, he will not permit himself to be separated from his party, and though he cannot sign it, he completes his own humiliation when he says that the bill, which he so lately declared was false and iniquitous, is at least a Democratic effort. It is not good enough for him to put his name to it but he allows it to become a law, and straight way the Democratic press with surprising unanimity begins to extol the President and his wonderful letter, which is called a "bold and sturdy declaration of principles" coming "from a man in whose honesty and sincerity of purpose the people have absolute confidence, and whose fidelity to their interests has been manifested time and again."—(Baltimore Sun.)

"Fidelity to their interests" is it to sit in the White House and sulk in bull-headed stubborness, nursing his personal grievances when the nation was in the throes of a great crisis! Or when great questions of national polity were pending, to go off fishing with some of his cronies. If he is a man of such honesty and sincerity of purpose why did he not manifest it by calling Congress again in extra session immediately upon its adjournment and have the Senate vote on the bill for free sugar, which the House had passed? It would require but a few minutes for the Senate to pass the bill to put sugar where it was under the McKinley Act, and, by, giving the people this one of the necessities of life, untaxed, would indicate something like sincerity. But the infamous tax of the Sugar Trust remains, together with the iniquitous income tax, and Mr. Cleveland and his party are plainly one. Dishonesty, incapacity and knavery are branded upon their every act, and if the people do not make manifest their abhorrance of the whole thing next November, then we are much mistaken in our estimate of American citizenship.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AND MIXED SCHOOLS.

For years, when other resources were exhausted, the Democratic papers have raised the cry of mixed schools and we cannot but say at times it has had its effect. When other war cries have failed to rally forces this one has always brought them together. The stock argument being, that should the Republican party come into power they would inaugurate a system of mixed schools; while no right thinking man ever thought such a thing, it was a good way to draw scattered forces together and it worked, but this year to put an end to Democratic misrepresentation, the Republicans, in State Convention assembled, declared their opposition to any such policy.

The overwhelming majority of the better thinking colored people are opposed to the system of mixing the races in our schools, and in accordance with their wish the plank was adopted. Our Democratic friends argue that it has been the practice in other States where Republicans have been in power to have mixed schools, (whether this be true or not we do not know, but on general principles we would prefer more reliable authority,) but granting that it has been so, that is no reason why such a policy should be carried [illegible] this State, and we know it [illegible] believe, and [illegible] will bring it [illegible]

SMACKS OF DEMOCRACY.

A small yet a significant thing has cropped out since the Republican Convention. It will be recalled, according to certain Democratic papers, that a few colored men, and no doubt men of intelligence and honest convictions, went before the committee on platform and presented a series of resolutions which they desired adopted by the committee. No one denies their right to do this but the peculiar part now comes in: If these colored men were Republicans and in line with Republican work, why is it that these resolutions in full, and comments evidently from the same source, were published in Democratic papers? They were published in The Evening Journal, Every Evening and the Dover Delawerean, the latter making a great display head in its issue of last week, and besides giving an account of the meeting held afterward, at which several resolutians were passed, but to which, by the way, no names were signed. Of course we do not pretend to know the source from which all this emanates, but taking all the facts into consideration, we have our suspicions that the whole thing has a decidedly Democratic flavor.

CLEVELAND the great! How the mighty have fallen!

"THE barrel and the ring" won the Democratic Convention on Tuesday.

JOSHUA and Jonathan fit well in the mouth, they will fit better at the election.

COULD a funeral have been more solemn than the adjournment of Congress?

THE St. Georges Democrat Congressional nominee did not get there, but he held his own, and held it well.

THE New York World says "the adjournment of Congress leaves the people saddled and bridled and the Sugar Trust booted and spurred."

IF there is anything more than words in the Democrat platform we have failed to find it. It is the wordiest document we have seen lately, and when that is said all is said.

EVERY Republican in New Castle County should take the TRANSCRIPT. If you are not a subscriber, send us your name and one dollar and get two papers for the price of one. See our offer on another page.

DELMONICO'S Chief Chef recently published a book entitled "One Hundred Ways to Prepare Eggs." Could not the Democratic Culinary Department publish one entitled "One Hundred Ways of Preparing Crow"?

THE funereal atmosphere which surrounded Congress at its adjournment is ascribed to the fact that the Congressmen, or a majority of them, realized that they were leaving Washington to attend their last political obsequies.

Is is said that Mr. Cleveland said "Damn" when asked if he would send a tariff message to Congress this week. There are many more who said the same thing with great fluency upon reading that letter of his, and some others who would like to say it.

DEMOCRATS of St. George's Hundred, one of the stock arguments of your leaders and papers has been that Republican victory in Delaware meant mixed schools. Read the Republican platform and see what is the true Republican position in the matter.

THE men who are at the head of the tickets of both the Republican and Democrat parties, are good, clean men, either one of whom will be a credit to the state in the event of his election, so for four years at least we will have no cause to be ashamed of our governor, and that is more than can be said of the four years past.

IT is a mighty poor argument for Democrats to say that there will be mixed schools if the Republicans come intopower despite their platform to the contrary. The answer to this argument is, that the Republicans have never yet failed in their promises to the people, and they certainly would not in this case as the Democrats well know.

WHO is that ignoramus of a Democrat who says that Willis is a weak candidate? Ask Congressman Causey if he considers him a weak candidate? The clinching answer is, that Willis ran a head of his ticket at the last election. Of course the Democrats agree that the Republican ticket is a weak one, they would have more ease of mind if they really thought so.

THE Democratic Convention on Tuesday demonstrated the fact beyond a doubt that Willard Saulsbury is the grand high Mogul of the Democratic party. The TRANSCRIPT nearly two years ago told its readers to keep their eyes on him. Our predictions have been fulfilled, and to day Willard Saulsbury is the Warwick of his party. He makes and unmakes candidates and controls the party machinery, and it is under his banner that those who want preferment must follow.

THE campaign is now fairly open. The TRANSCRIPT expects to take a hand in the fight. We want to say right here, that while we expect to deal fearlessly with principles and measures, we do not expect, nor will we deal in abuse and vituperation of men. We have never yet followed this course; insinuations and personal attacks are not in our line, and the consequence is we think we hold the respect and good will of our political enemies as well as friends. We do not want our friends—the enemy—to think for one moment that we shall not criticise the actions of the Democrats, for we shall; but

OF all the productions of a human mind for twaddle, gush and puerile idiocy the platform adopted by the Democratic convention on Tuesday surpasses any thing we have ever seen. The man or men who framed it should be framed themselves. It is without exception the most verbose and silly production we know of—a perfect avalanche of words that mean nothing.

THE boy or young man who expects to make farming his business, needs preparation as much so as a physician or lawysr does for his calling, and in order that the Delaware farmers may stand with the best in the land, Delaware College has a special agricultural course, and though the boy may only have the winter months for schooling, there is a course mapped out just for those months. Brains and book knowledge are requisite for successful farming, and the man who lacks them goes handicapped through life.

THE OPPRESSIVE SUGAR TAX.

(From the Boston Herald.)

The sugar schedule of the new tariff levies, directly and indirectly, a tax of $70,000,000 upon the consumers of it. It is a per capita tax, the most objectionable form that taxation can take, for it bears with disproportioate weight upon the poor. In this respect it is as cruel as a bread tax.

The outrage is intensified by the fact that $27,000,000 of the consumers of sugar is levied for the enrichment of the sugar refiners and sugar growers. As to the other part of the burden—the $42,000,000 which will go into the Treasury—the levy is not at all justified by the financial outlook.

Senator Gray and Delaware.

The Manufacturer (Rep).

In Delaware the Democratic organization has been placed by its leader, Senator Gray, in opposition to the interests of the state. Delaware has two chief avocations: Manufacturing in the towns and the city of Wilmington, and fruit growing, gardening and varied agriculture, seeking a near market in such manufacturing places or in the large city farther away. Senator Gray is a free trader, a doctrinaire lawyer, disregarding alike the lessons of observation and the teachings of experience. In defiance of the interests of the working men of Wilmington and New Castle, and every other industrial centre in the state, he urges forward the abominable attack on American manufactures, and strikes thus at the ability of those employed in them to purchase the grain, fruits and vegetables of the rural portions of the state. Mr. Gray could not be a worse enemy to the people of Delaware if he were a paid agent of the Commercial Exchange of the city of Manchester or of Berlin.

The Democratic organization being thus led into the sloughs of free trade by those who direct its march, the Republicans, on the other hand, stand fast for protection, and at their state convention on Tuesday adopted a straightout series of resolutions, demanding a return to the American system and supporting the several measures which Republican policy had established in the national behalf before the fatal campaign of 1892.

In the election of members of the Legislature to take place this fall the choice of a senator of the United States is involved, as the present term of the Hon. Anthony Higgins will expire in March, 1895. On such an issue and with the whole of the evidence in the case so plainly displayed to the view of the people, it is not credible that Delaware will vote its support to the ruinous policy of the Democratic party. Mr. Higgins has proved himself an energetic, capable and faithful representative of the public interests and should be returned without a shadow of hesitation or doubt. The cause of protection has had no more vigilant friend in the Senate than he, and every one who desires the nation to return to the sure ground of an adequate tariff will hope to see him triumphantly re-elected.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, August 29th, 1894.—Mr. Cleveland widly advertised backbone has apparently turned to jelly. The tariff bill which he so bitterly abused became the law of the land at midnight Monday, because he lacked the nerve to veto it. If instead of affecting the interest of thousands, nay, millions, of people, it had merely affected the interest of some poor devil who had sought relief from Congress he would have sprung a veto on it quick enough. Bah! Let the country hear no more of this man's courage. He has the courage of the bully and braggart only. He is always ready to jump on some little thing but when it comes to something big he ignores it.

No wonder that Mr. Cleveland has not acted upon the report of the civil service commission, recommending the dismissal of the blatent negro demagogue, C. H. J. Taylor, whom he made recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, for having violated the law against soliciting campaign contributions from the Government employes. That report gives him the alternative of snubbling the civil service commission and winking at a violation of the civil service law, for which he always professed to have such great respect—he always carried an overstock of professions, or of dismissing his special protege from an office to which he should [illegible] would have been had not the Senate refused to confirm his nomination to a diplomatic position. Taylor says he has no fear of dismissal, He has made Mr. Cleveland believe that as the head of the negro Democratic league, an organization composed of negros who have been given office and those who expect to be given office by this administration, he controls a large number of votes; hence his certainty of being protected. As a matter of fact those who should know do not believe that there are one thousand negro Democrats in the United States.

the tongue of rumor says that he expects to bring back a big campaign fund to be spent in trying to get himself re-elected to the House. Whether this rumor is true or false I will not undertake to say, but, as Mr. Wilson was instrumental in getting tariff legislation through Congress that is going to put lots of money into European pockets at the expense of American working men, it is unreasonable to suppose that some of the benefitted European manufacturers may be grateful enough to put up some money to be used in trying to keep Mr. Wilson in Congress. Both he and Mr. Cleveland have promished to get more favors for European manufacturers if Congress continues to be Democratic.

Congress adjourned yesterday, and its Democratic members will have an opportunity to learn just what their constituents think of the blundering incapacity which has marked every thing they have undertaken.

RECORD OF THE SESSION.

New York Herald (Dem).

The record of Congress for this session is now closed and it may be said with entire truth that a record less creditable or more unsatisfactory to the country can hardly be recalled in the experience of recent years.

The session has been dragged through nearly nine months, and the measures of public consequence which have been acted on can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Chief among them are the repeal of the Federal elections law, the anti-trust statute and the tariff bill. This first is a political measure, the second is likely to become a dead letter, and the best that can be said of the last is that it is not as bad as no bill or the dismal failure of all legislation.

Besides this sorrow showing, the record of the session is blackened by the useless and inexcusable imposition of a Populistic tax, against which the people have protested as a wanton outrage and which they will not long tolerate on the statute books of the nation.

Had Congress saved its record from this blot and passed a satisfactory tariff bill, the other shortcomings of the session would have been overlooked. Had it accepted even the iniquitous Gorman bill in the beginning the country would have been saved at least the long delay which proved so disastrous to trade, industry and labor. But as it has turned out, nearly nine months have been wasted in tariff tinkering, to the exclusion of all other matters of public utility, and the final result reached in the closing days of August is a tariff law which will put every Democrat on the defensive in the coming campaign which the head of the party has openly repudiated and will not sign as President, and which is saddled with a useless tax that cannot fail to evoke the curses of the people.

Malaria is one of the most insiduous of health destroyers. Hood's Sarsaparilla counteracts its deadly poison and builds up the system.

Printing Government Envelopes.

Weed, Parsons & Co., of Albany, have been awarded the contract for printing envelopes. Three million dollars' worth of work is called for by the contract. The original contract was let to James Purcell, of Hudson, N. Y., and calls for the printing engrossing and manufacturing of envelopes for the period of four years. Mr. Purcell signed a sub contract with J. H. Manning of Albany, as the representative of the Weed, Parsons company. In order to do the work, the plant of the company will have to be changed and enlarged, at a cost of $100,000. Three hundred hands will be added to the present force employed, and an output of 200,000 envelopes a day—of different sizes—will be the result. A carload of paper a day will be required for the work. The paper will be taken to Albany in government cars and government officials will oversee the work. Payments of employes will will be made quarterly.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F.J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Poets to be Pited.

Pity the poets who get stuck in their efforts to make words rhyme. Fancy a man hunting for a rhyme for the word "Pellets." If it were only in the singular—"Pellet" he might praise the "Pellet" and bid you smell it, tell it, yell it, sell it and what not. But "Pellets" is hard to match. At least Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are matchless as a cure for bilious attacks, indigestion, constipation and sick headache. they are preventive as well as curative. Hardly larger than mustard seed. They work wonders.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette

A Little ....Love Story

For the End of the Century Woman.

SUCH a sunset as glowed behind the line of purplish hills had never been on land or sea. Marietta leaned back and looked at her picture. It was a failure, and she knew it. The hills themselves suggested the brilliant violet of fashionable fabrics rather than the duskiness of the purple that rests upon distant uplands. Seeing these things, Marietta suddenly dropped her head upon a table where palettes, paint-boxes, brushes and the remains of a frugal luncheon lay, and wept.

By and by, when she could weep no longer and when there was a dull pain in her head and her neck ached and her eyes were heavy and smarting, she looked up again. It was getting rather dark to work, and so she busied herself in a dull, uninterested fashion in putting her room to rights. Then she drew a chair to the window and looked drearily out. She could not see the western sky, but from the trailing clouds that floated about in her range of vision she knew that there was glorious color at the end of the street. She knew how the high chimneys and crowded roofs stood out against it. She knew the slight vapor that veiled the dazzling color, the smoke that rose from the roaring, dirty, noisy city, just now touched with poetry from the setting sun.

Knowing as she did what view the end of the street presented, her mind called up a contrasting picture—the sunset lying above the hills at home. There was no smoke there to dim the glory. Miles and miles across the country one's gaze could travel through the clear air. And as she thought these things Marietta's head went suddenly down again upon the window sill.

Truly, it was hard work and folly, this striving after artistic fame. She hated the little room that was at once studio and bedchamber. She loathed the makeshifts—the divan that was a bed, the screen-hidden washstand, the curtains that hid tins of crackers on her bookcase. She hated her fellow-boarders. She hated the gossip of the art class. She had been an idiot to come from home and, still worse, an idiot to persist in staying. She had no talent, she told herself. And if she had, what did talent and accomplishment amount to? Was the woman whose pictures might hang on the walls at world famous exhibitions, who had achieved greatness and wealth, was she as happy as the bright-eyed woman in the village, whose face was radiant as she walked with her baby in her arms to meet her husband at nightfall? And Marietta wailed.

That picture of a woman, loving and beloved, stayed with her even when she dried her tears and brushed her hair preparatory to meeting her fellow-boarders at dinner. Only the girl in it was no longer an indefinite figure, and the husband whom she met took on familiar lines and lineaments. There was a big yellow house on one of the hills in that fair hill region that Marietta loved. And in it there was a room, dark with wainscoting, bright with light from many windows, ruddy with the glow of the wood fire on the hearth. She knew the place so well. And she might live and reign there. She saw herself at evening before the fire. Her yellow hair gleamed against the dark chair in which she sat. The lines of care and disappointment were magically gone from her face. She was waiting, quiet, peaceful, happy at last, for the coming of her husband. She said the word aloud in her little room. Then the color surged over her face and she laughed abruptly.

"I wonder," she said, "whether I shall do it. I wonder whether I shall ever tell Arthur the vision I have seen to-night?"

The next morning Marietta started home "for a visit."

* * * * * * *

The country was the same; the air was clearer than ever. The universe seemed spread out before her she stood on the hill. Her heart beat with such happiness that it was pain. Nothing was changed—the home, her mother, everything was the same. Thankful tears welled up into her eyes. Then she heard her sister's voice from within the house.

"I wonder," it said, "if she knows of Arthur's engagement?"

"Oh, I don't guess it matters much to her anyhow," said her mother. "She refused him once."

"Of course she doesn't card for him," said the worldly wise sister, "but it always is annoying to a girl to learn that anybody she's looked upon as her property has exercised the right of free choice and selected another owner."

Marietta tip-toed softly off the piazza and went to the place where she had been wont to go with all her childish griefs. When she came back she treated herself with a slightly ironical indulgence.

The next winter she won her first triumph in art. The picture was well hung at the exhibition; critics were kind to it and a great art connoisseur bought it. It was the picture of a yellow-haired woman before the fire in a quaint old library, and it was called "Waiting."

Economy and Strength.

Valuable vegetable remedies are used in the preperation of Hood's Sarsaparilla in such a peculiar manner as to retain the full medicinal value of every ingredient. Thus Hood's Sarsaparilla combines economy and strength and is the only remedy of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills do not purge, pain or gripe, but act promptly, easily and efficiently.

QUAINT IRISH STORIES.

Aubrey de Vere's Recollections of Childhood.

Aubrey de Vere, the Irish poet, has written a series of recollections, which will be publishsd in two parts in The Century. The first portion, dealing with his childhood and boyhood, is printed in the September number, and is full of quaint stories of the olden days in Ireland. Mr. de Vere says:

My earliest recollectione are of our Irish home, Curragh Chase, and I always see it bathed as in summer sunshine. It was not once, however, as it is now. At the bottom of the lawn there now spreads a lake, but at that time it was rich meadow-land, divided by a slender stream, with fair green hills beyond. The pleasure ground now blends insensiby with the lawns and woods; but it had then a wall around it, which, as my father's old friend and school-fellow, Sir Thomas Ackland, said on visiting us, when both had left youth behind, gave it a look of monastic seclusion. It was then divided into four grassy spaces, as smooth as velvet, and bright with many a flower-bed I can still see the deer park, and the deer bounding from brake to brake of low-spreading oak and birch; the gathering of the poor on Sunday evenings at the gates of the long ash avenue for their rural dance; and the gay, though half bashful, confidence with which some rosy, pretty peasant girl would advance and drop a courtesy before one of our party, or some visitor at the "big house." that courtesy being an invitation to dance. There was also a little open in the woods in which the neighbors danced, nor have I yet forgotten the vexation with which I found myself once snatched up and carried home to bed by one of those "merry maids whose tresses tossed in light," and who lost little time in returning to the revel.

It was a time at which opposites of all sorts oddly combined. The country-gentlemen were then looked up to as so many little princes, and the poor would gladly have adopted them as chiefs, like those of old, had they cared to accept th at position; yet there was great familiarty in the intercourse of classes. It was all strangely mixed with simplicity of life. My grandmother drove about the park with her four grays and an outrider, while my father, with whom she lived, had his four blacks and an outrider; yet dinner, which was at five o'ciock, would have been far from satisfactory to a diner-out of the present day. What a stranger would have thought ostentation was often a necessity, for the roads were generally carried over high hills. I well remember my grandmother's beautiful but melancholy black eyes, her ways at once authoritive and affectionate, and the reverence with which she is regarded by all. Nor have I forgotten her good-night to us children: "God bless you, child, and make a good man of you"; nor the loud laugh once when the youngest of us, not to be outdone in civility, responded: "God bless you, grandmother, and make a good woman of you."

My grandfather always gave the sagest advice to a friend, but generally acted himself from whim. Once, when walking in a London street, he passed a room in which an auction was going on, and attracted by the noise entered it. The property set up for sale was the Island of Lundy in the British Channel. He knew nothing whatsoever about it, but when the auctioneer proclaimed that it had never paid either tax or tithe, that it acknowledged neither king nor parliament, nor law civil or ecclesiastical, and that its proprietor was pope and emperor at once in his own scanty domain, he made a bid, and the island was knocked down to him. It turned out a good speculation. It paid its cost by the sale of rabbits; and whenever its purchaser chanced to have picked a quarrel with England and Ireland at the same time, it was a hermitage to which he could always retire and meditate. He planted there a small Irish colony, and drew up for them a very compendious code, in a quaint law of divorce in case of matrimonial disputes. In money matters he was adventurous and unlucky. He lost about £15,000 by cards, and then renounced them. He is also said to have lost about half the family property through some trivial offense given to his father. My grandfather was the most popular of country-gentlemen, because he had a great love for the poor, and always helped them at a pinch. A very old tenant once told me many stories illustrating this side of his character. Here is one of them. A young man was tried for murder, having killed a member of a rival faction in a faction fight. The judge, reluctant to sentence him to death on account of his youth, turned to him and said: "Is there any one in court who could speak as to your character?" The youth looked around the court and then said sadly: "There is no man here, my lord, that I know." At that my grandfather chanced to walk into the grand-jury gallery. He saw at once how matters stood. He called out: "You are a queer boy that don't know a friend when you see him!" The boy was quick-witted; he answered: "Oh, then 'tis meself that is proud to see your honor here this day!" "Well," said the judge, "Sir Vere, since you know that boy, will you tellus what you know of him?" "I will" said my grandfather; and what I can tell you is this—that from the very first day I ever saw him to this minute, I never knew anything of him that was not very good." The old tenant ended his tale by striking his hands together and exclaiming, "And he never to have clapped his eye upon the boy till that minute!" The boy escaped being hanged. Such traits make a man popular in Ireland; and it is said that at his keening (funeral wail) for many a mile was such as had rarely been heard. Not long ago I came upon a letter from an English minister of the day, informing him that the patent for his peerage, an English one, was ready. It seems, however, that at the last moment he changed his mind and declined it. Possibly there was some one to whom "he would not give so much satisfaction" as that of seeing him take a peerage.

A BACHELOR'S NOTE-BOOK.

FIRST EXTRACT.

I have concluded to marry. Every one I know has married lately. There is no one to bear me company now since Jack Haverstraw went off and became a benedict. I dare say if I could only wait long enough they'd all be back at their favorite sports and in their favorite haunts, but I don't like the waiting. Besides, it's uncomfortable living in lodgings and having to pay for all those little services which a wife renders for the pure joy of working for one.

The woman I marry must be somewhat different from the ones the other fellows have married. Mrs. Haverstraw, for instance, although she is good-looking and rich, hasn,t a domestic taste in the world, and her manners are a little too free. My wife must be good-looking, well bred, dignified, yet cordial, and domestic while at the same time she must have a mind above puddings. Well born, of course, I wouldn't be saddled with the relatives-in-law poor Jorley has to carry for a fortune! And I don't want any of this modern woman nonsence about her. No missions, no career, no confounded tomfoolery of any sort can my wife indulge in! That's certain.

I was rather inclined to think that Miss Vinney might do. All her relatives except that meek, self-effacing little mother of hers are dead. She has a little money—not much, to be sure, but enough to keep her going. She's pretty, rather vivacious, well bred, and I saw her sewing one day. She seemed about right. I could picture her receiving Haverstraw and Jorley and the rest with that friendly, half-eager, half-distant air of hers. She would look well at a dinner-table too. She likes outdoor life enough to be companionable and not enough to be masculine I thought she would suit. I cultivated her assiduously. She was intelligent, too. It was positively stimulating to talk to her, she had so many ideas. We walked about together, rowed a little, read some, and I sent her flowers, and all that. She was fond of dancing, to be sure, and I don't dance, but that might have been settled afterwards. I should have allowed her to dance square dances. Altogether, she seemed satisfactory.

One day I heard her talking on the piazza I discovered that she had written a poem—several of them, in fact. Indeed, they had been published. I learned that she intended to keep on writing poetry. I heard her say that some time she hoped to make a name for herself! That would mean that her husband would be known as "the husband of Mrs. Geraldine Vinney Blank." He might even be called Mr. Geraldine Vinney Blank by the jocose! I have done it myself. What an escape it was for me! I cannot be thankful enough that she had refused me the night before. I should have felt bo und in honor, had she accepted me, to continue the engagement even after that revelation.

Life in the South.

Col. Johnston tells a little story of meeting an Englishman once abroad who sincerely believed that our war was between North and South America, and who insisted that all slaveholders locked up their slaves at night in fear of personal attack.

"I told him, sir, that no door or window of my father's house wa ever locked, night or day. Nothing was ever locked, sir, but the pantry and the smoke-house. And although my mother carried the pantry keys, the cook carried the others for thirty years. Neither my father nor my mother would have known the smoke-ho use key if they had seen it!"

Mother's Influence.

Who can overestimate it? For good or evil it is far reaching. Her name, the first that falls from the lips of the prattling babe, is often the last whisper of the dying sage. God bless our mothers! How important then that they be shielded from those weakening diseases which too often wreck their constitution and render them wearied, fretful invalids, prematurely aged and ambitionless. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done much toemancipate women from this thraldom and may be taken by the most delicate with absolute certainty of benefit. For nursing mothers and all debilitated, or "run down" women, it is the most effective restorative tonic to build them up. To those about to become mothers it is a priceless boon. It lessens the pains and perils of child birth, shortens labor, promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child and shortens the period of confinement.

Wife—And did Mr. Gay really say I was positively dove-like? Husband—Something of that sort. He said you were pigeon-toed, I believe.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rivers Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Dr. Vaughan's Pharmacy. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

"Will you marry me?" "I am already engaged to four mrn." "But you can only marry one, you know. Let me be the one."

Fair Customer—Can't you send this bathing suit by mail to my sister at Rye beach? Accommodating Clerk—Certainly, miss; but you will have to pay the postage on the bundle. One cent, please.

CORNER OF SMILES.

And paid it all in cash,
Then looking at the wreck, he said:
"Who steals my purse steals trash."

She—Boys will be boys. He—So would the girls, if they could.

It is not the woman who fires up the quickest that makes the best match.

"Willie, do you and your brother ever fight?" "Yes, sir." "Who whips?" "Pa."

"Yes," said the fair typewriter, "I will marry you: But as your wife, Mr. Margin, you must not expect me to be dictated to."

"Why don't you feed your pig to day, John?" "Because I dont want her too fat, and by feeding her only every second day I'm sure to get good streaked bacon."

Full Blown Rose—What a pity, dear, you are engaged so young! You will never have the fun of refusing a man.

Bud—No, but I've had the fun of accepting one.

Speaker (in the hen convention)—There are now three measures before the house to increase the duty on eggs. Mrs. Biddy—Well, I move we lay 'em on the table!

"Johnny, you're not tanned much for a boy who has been at the seashore." "Nope, I've been good. Mommer said she'd tan me if I didn't behave, an' I behaved."

THE DIARY OF A SUMMER GIRL.

Aug. 25.—He came down here to sketch. I don't wonder. Nowhere else in all the world is the sky so beautiful. Nowhere else is the sea so lovely. Nowhere else are there such rocks, such stretches of sand, such craggy promontories jutting out into the sea, such lovely, slender, white shining lighthouses flashing their signals afar. I don't wonder he came down here to sketch. I am a little sarprised, however, that he did not even unpack his sketching apparatus.

I was sitting on the piazza with Miss Winters when I saw him coming over the sand. I like Eleanor Winters. She's a delightful women. She went away at once after she had greeted him. He sat down after she had gone, and neither of us to think of anything to say. I had on my green and white striped gingham, and my lap was full of nasturtiums, which I had been gathering. I began the proverbial ingenue act of tearing them in piece's.

"Don't do that." he said. "Don't do anything that would indicate cruelty of inconsiderateness on your part."

I felt as though my speaking countenance rivalled the flaming flowers in color. Then I said, lamely:

"How is your mother?"

"I don't know," he answered. I tried to rally and say something about his unfilial conduct. I couldn't. There was singing sound in my ears, and I couldn't speak. I was disgusted, too. I loathe sentiment at noon day, and there I sat in the glare of the afternoon sun, in the presence of all who drove or walked by, blushing, stammering and acting like an idiot instead of a woman who has been out for years, and has a reputation for repartee.

"Do you know why I came?" he went on at last.

"Yes," said I, stupidly. I wasn't going to be babyishly ignorant, if I could help it.

"No, you don't," he answered, with eloquent intonation, though his words were not remarkable. "I came because I could not stay away."

Then he stopped, and I gasped a little. I struggled wildly for an idea. None came. I was silent.

"Do you know why I couldn't stay away?" he said again.

"Yes," I answered him, once more with the same superhuman penetration.

Then there was a pause. The whole earth was whirling madly through space; so fast that I could see none of the familiar objects as they whirled, so fast that I heard its whirr and singing. It seemed to me an eternity before he spoke again.

"Well," he said very quietly, "and shall I have to stay away, Inez?"

* * * * * * *

This is the most glorions place in all the universe. We are going to have a summer home here. I have given up Lenox for September. I shall have to be back in town getting my clothes ready. Herbert wants me to wear a green and white gingham for a wedding dress, but I've decided on white satin.

A SERMON AT HOME.

For wisdom is a defence, and money is a defence; but the excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth life to them that have it.—Ecclesiastes, vii, 12

There is a word to be said to young men; not a harsh word, but a word of friendly and kindly counsel.

And here is the reason for it—namely, becase a good start goes a long way toward a good ending. If the bullet leaves the rifle barrel with only a slight divergence from the right direction, it may never hit the target at all, for the further it goes the more wide of the mark it is; but if it leaves the barrel perfectly aimed fo the centre of the target, it is safe equipped with the right ideas the chances are in favor of his being of some value to the world; but if when he stands on the threshold of life he has no controlling moral principle, he is like a chip on the surface of a freshet—that is, he may, if he has rare good fortune, reach the sea, or he may be thrown on the bank at any turn of the current.

It is impossible, therefore, to exaggerate the necessity of a fine equipment, because the fate of the soul, long after this life has ended, may depend on it. While it is possible for a boy with a mind full of mistaken ideas to throw them aside one after the other as he proceeds on his journey, it is also true that he runs great risks and will probably end his career with an armful of regrets and a handful of happiness.

Now, there is no subject on which there are more false notions than on the subject of money. It is a good thing to have money and a good thing to work for it, but you must be careful not to pay too large a price for it. As the servant of a noble man money is exceeding valuable, for it furnishes opportunities to enlarge the scope of charity and benevolence. As the master of a niggardly man it developes the meaner qualities of humanity and makes its possessor a mere caricature.

The world is all wrong in this matter and you will require a deal of independence to put yourself right. There is in the community an overestimate of wealth which is very demoralizing. The Preacher makes a catalogue in which wisdom stands at the head and money follows as of secondary importance; but modern society reverses the order and puts money first, with wisdom far below it. We doff our hats to one who has wealth but no character, and hardly recognize one who has an honest character but no money. The result is that we work too hard for money and have too light an opinion of character.

If truth be told it is, after all, the men of character and not the men of money who have made the world what it is. The fact stands in the foreground of all thoughtful observation like a towering monument against the sky. If we were compelled to do without the one or the other it would be sheer insanity to dispense with men of character and retain the men of money.

Let us be clear on this point. The clergy are apt to talk about "filthy lucre." But do not lead astray. Money is never filthy unless it makes the soul that seeks it filthy. It is your right to labor for it and your right to get it if you can You are justified in laying plans for its acquisition, because there is a glorious satisfaction in the thought that you will want for nothing in your old age and your dear ones will be amply provided for. But have a care that you do not come to think that your happiness depends on it, because after all is said, there are more happy poor men than happy rich men. For that matter, it is a grave error to suppose that money can itself make you happy without the qualities which will enable you to enjoy it and do good with it.

The business of the world is closely related to the progress of the world. It is a noble calling that of the business man, and one which God looks upon with tender regard. Money and philanthropy are twins, born of the same good mother, two children of beauty and grace. The merchant's work is just as Providential as that of the clergyman, and his mission, if he rightly understands it, is just as important. If the consecrating hands of the Holy Spirit are laid on the head of the preacher and he is thus devoted to a special task, so are the same hands laid in equal consecration on the head of the young man who starts on a business career, and he is laid under obligations to be usetul to his fellows. That is a truth which cannot be too keenly appreciated. We cannot get along without money making, and the one thing we insist on, therefore, is that the money makers shall be honest in their dealing and keep their consciences in good trim.

More than that, the business man preaches the gospel of rectitude more effectively than the clergy can do it. A noble deed is better than a noble word. The word may incite to the deed, but when we get to heaven the merchant who has led a pure life will occupy as high a place as the minister who told him to do it. George Peabody's life outweighs the sermon of a century. Such a man talks to the whole race, and his voice is not hushed when he dies. As the light of a distant star floods the earth long after the star itself has been extinguished, so the uprightness and integrity of the merchant exert untold influence long after a sorrowing people have laid him in his resting place.

This, then, is the advice we offer:—Let your ambition run high and seek its realization by hard work, but remember that it is a man's soul and not his pocketbook which goes to heaven? You can get on without riches if need be, but you cannot get on without a clean conscience. Make money but no not worship it. Pay a good price for it, but not more than it is worth. Honest dollars hurt no one but dishonest gains are a consuming fire.—N. Y. Herald.

Guest—Waiter, bring two boiled eggs. Waiter—Boss, couldn't you take dem aigs poached? Hit's been found mo' satisfactory all roun' to open dem aigs in de kitchen.

THE MODEL WIFE.

She rises every morning,
Just when the roosters crow;
She gently splits the kindling—
Makes the old stove puff and blow.

She puts the breakfast on to cook,
And sings, as H at play;
And while the buttercakes are made,
Her husband snores away!

The children show her gentle care,
Their nightly slumbers o'er;
She dresses half a dozen,
And whips a dozen more!

Then to the room she doth repair;
Her husband hears her say:
"I've almost worked myself to death!
Are you going to sleep all day?"
—Atlanta Constitution.

Our Woman's .....Column

For Girls To Read and Profit Therefrom.

A GIRL who deliberately marries without understanding the art of cooking is committing a—well, the law of the land does not call it a crime, but the unwritten law of the home certainly does constitute it a crime. Especially is this true of those in modest circumstances, who cannot employ efficient cooks. Burnt fingers, sour bread, scorched roasts, leatherery steaks, wishy-washy coffee and disordered stomachs are not conductive to the happiness that one imagines the honeymoon should be filled with. There are so many reasons, logical and philosophical, why cooking should be included in the accomplishments of young girls that it is useless to enumerate them. Good cooking is the basis of happiness, health and success in the home life. One may thoroughly understand art, music, architecture, science and philosophy, be familiar with astronomy mythology, the mysteries of evolution, politics and literature, yet if the chemistry of a loaf of bread has been neglected the education is sadly incomplete, so far as the "house mother" is concerned.

"The best thing in life for a woman is a home," says the Song. "Independence, missions, the profession and all the other things are well enough provided they do not separate her from the hearth-stone. If they do then success must be great, indeed, to compensate for the domestic losses."

"What could you do if you lacked your splendid gifts?"

"A lot of things. I can sew and cook; I wouldn't be a typewriter and I not clerk. A sedentary life I think horrible. It uses up a body, saps the life out of nerve and tissue. If I lost my voice, if I couldn't teach or if there was no market for the ideas I have in decorative work, I would become a surgical nurse. The world is full of suffering, and people are hungering for sympathy. I think I could nurse."

"What is woman's greatest blessing?"

"Healthy ancestry. The novelict says a virtuous and healthy ancestry, but virtue is lagely a geographical condition. I do hate to see the publicity given so-called beauty books, and the money and faith women waste on receipts for taking off wrinkles, freckles and tan. That sort of beautifying is all bosh. Women should resolutely turn their faces from it. Being beautiful is laudable. but so many girls take the wrong road. The essentials for admiration are intelligence, health and refinement, or to be brief, intelligence, for without it inherrited health cannot be preserved, or refinement secured. Men care very little for mere beauty, and children care absolutely nothing; they want companions, and companionship depends upon intelligence, personal refinement and well being. Good health, good form and good clothes are good looks enough.

She sat on the piazza and made all the other women madly envious by saying that she had a jewel of a girl; that she had had her for four years and that she expected to have her forever. The other women asked her how she accomplished it and she told them:

"I pay her well," she announced in the beginning. "I also pay her regularly. If she wants to send her money home she can do it at a given date. She is in no more uncertainty about her salary than my husband is. Her room is pleasant. It isn't elaborate, but it is as comfortable and homelike as I could make it. I tell her exactly what I want done and let her do it then in her own way. The children are not allowed to give here orders and they are obliged to treat her respectfully. I myself am as polite as I know how to be to her. I never reprimand her in public. I don't mind letting her see that I like her, and even telling her so. I praise her when she deserves praise. She has company a couple of times a week and she never abuses her privileges in that respect. I try to give her as much freedom as if she were employed in some other capacity. I think my success with her is an advertisement for my method."

"Maybe," said one of the other women, "but she must have been an angel to start with."

And all the others agreed with her.

Mrs. W. T. Agnew, Olympia, killed a bear the other day with a single rifle shot. If she lived in the effete East her talents would not be recognized, but in the glorious West she is entitled to run for constable on the strength of her exploit.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher has passed her 82d year, and does not now subject herself to great mental strain, but she is still able to write for the magazines.

ESCALLOPED TOMATOES.—These make a nice breakfast or tea dish at this season of the year. Take six nice tomatoes and scald to remove the skin. Chop them in inch square cubes and season them with a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, three heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, one of sugar, and, if liked, a spoonful of onion essence. Have toasted and cut fine a cupful of dry bread. Butter a pudding dish and put a layer of tomatoes on top of that. Over the top a half cupful of toasted bread which has been pounded to a powder. Lay over it some bits of butter, dampen with a little milk and set in a hot oven for fifteen minutes.

For dyspepsia and all other conditions resulting from constipation, go by the book on Beecham's pills.

Book free, pills 25c. At drugstores; or write to B F Allen Co, 365 Canal st, New York.

AND REGULAR GRADUATES OF PENNSYLVANIA COLLEGE.

Office of twenty years standing; will continue at the old stand, corner of Main and Scott Streets, Middletown, Delaware.

All operations pertaining to the teeth and mouth will receive the best and most careful attention at moderate charges.

Our specialty is the saving and preserving of the teeth; not the indiscriminate extraction as is too often done.

Teeth Extracted Painlessly by the New Propess without extra charge.

This Anaesthetic has been carefully prepared by the Dickson Anaesthetic Manufacturing Company.

To say that our office has the sole right for the use of the New Process would be misleading and deceptive.

Why—The Dental Society sometime since for the public safety has the much named preparation analyzed at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy proving that it was being falsely represented to the public by men who gave it names that were misleading. The analysis showing that Cocaine is the essential property.

Consequently it is free to the world and anybody may use it by the simple purchase of the mixture at a nominal price—Teeth also Extracted by

NITROUS OXIDE GAS

The recent reduction of Dental Material enables us to furnish sets of Teeth at prices to suit the time—Satisfaction Assured.

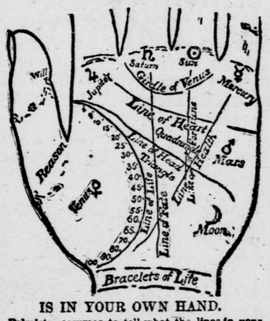
YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the CIRCLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15

BRECKINRIDGE AGAIN.

His Sister-in-Law Appeals to the District to Defeat Him.

Miss Mary Desha the sister of Breckinridge's first wife, has written a letter to the "Men and Women of the Blue Grass," in which she calls upon the district to elect a pure man to Congress. She says:

"I have hestitated for many days before writing this letter because I know the prejudices of Kentucky men and their opinion that if a woman lifts her voice against the established order of iniquity, she is out of her sphere. But the occasion is so grave that I venture, even at the risk of shocking my friends, to tell you some truths which it is necessary for you to know, knowing well you will never hear them from Kentucky men who have been in Washington. They are bound to keep silence, either from the feeling of loyalty which is much stronger in man than woman, or from 'a fellow feeling that makes them wonderous kind.'

"That Colonel Breckinridge will be returned to Congress has never for one moment entered my mind. The very thought of it is an insult to the State whose boast has been that 'her men were brave and her women virtuous.' I am not troubled about his re-election but I am afraid that the politicians will send some one like unto him. If they succeed in renominating him or some other immoral man, will the reputable portion of the community unite on a man, regardless of politics, who can lift the solid banner of the Ashland District, cleanse its stains by a pure life and bear it with such honor that we who live in Washington and have been deeply humiliated, may again be able to say with uplifted heads 'We are Kentuckians.'

"The plain truth is that of all the immoral delegations in Congress that of Kentucky has the reputation of being the worst. With the Taulbee and Breckinridge scandals and the low obscenity of Thompson you will not wonder at it. What we need from the Ashland District is a clean, pure man, with brains enough to know, that it is a man's actions and not his religious twaddle that makes for righteousness, and brains enough to fool a whole community for half a century, into thinking him a Christian and a gentleman when he is directly the reverse. See to it, if you must have alliteration on your banners that instead of 'Breckinridge and brains' you have a name that will go well with morality."

An Ideal Woman's Magazine.

The literary passions of a literary man are always interesting and they are peculiarly so when an author of such renown as William Dean Howells tells of them. The tenth installment of Mr. Howells literary biography under the the title of "My Literary Passions" appears in the Ladies Home Journal. Next in interest to Mr. Howells' contribution comes a page devoted to "The Daughter in the Home." by Mrs. Burton Kingsland, Mrs. Hamilton Mott and the editor of the Journal. A particularly helpful article in response to the question, "What Are Building Societies?" is contributed by Mr. Addison B. Burk, so widely known as an authority upon the subject. Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler writes most earnestly on the subject of women "Living Beyond Their Strength." The fourth paper of Mrs. Burton Kingsland's series, "A Daughter at Sixteen," is given. A clever short story by "Octave Thanat." entitled "Miss Maria's Fiftieth," is charmingly illustrated by Alice Barber Stephens and Frank R. Stockton brings to a conclusion "Pomona's" most recent travels. Harriet Ogden Morison gives a page of exquisite designs for "Artistic Piano Covers," and J. H. Adams contributes some handsome designs for "The Mantel and the Fireplace." Mrs. Mallon's pages, with original designs for "The Bonnets of the Autumn" and "This Autumn's Velvet Coats," will delight all women, and mothers everywhere will be pleased with Miss Hooper's valuable suggestions on "A Schoolgirl's Outfit." Other articles in this issue are Miss Scovil's "Physical Culture of Children," and Helen Jay's "The Farmer's Wife and her Boys."

Altogether this September issue, with its artistic cover by W. Smedley, is an ideal magazine which every woman will do well to have. Published by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, for ten cents per number and one dollar per year.

Piles.

Piles is so common that every other person you meet is troubled with it more or less. It seems to be a little thing and usually gets little attention. It may not be serious at first, but it makes a man sick—makes him nervous, cross, irritable—unfit for business. It robs him of sleep, takes his appetite—cuts down his flesh—and yet he is careless about it.

FOSTER'S

will cure Piles. It will cure other things, too, but it is particularly good for Piles. It stops the itch and the ache at once. It may take several days to wholly allay the inflammation and reduce the swelling, but it will do it—sure. Has done it in innumerable cases. Never has failed.

Good for Eczema, Ring Worm, Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Dandruff, Pimples, and all Skin Diseases.
